Editorial

The clocks have changed and we enter the time of long winter evenings. Halloween is just over as we approach Christmas and leave behind what has looked like a record year for visitors. Purbeck has seemed, at times, to be totally full, with no car parking space left. What, if anything is to be done? Answer, not much; the new Dorset Council, which is being set up, will not have elected members until May next year so no firm decisions can be taken till then. Once set up it will probably take at least a year if not more to settle in and there still won't be any money. However, not wanting to be too pessimistic, the traders and pubs have hopefully done well out of record numbers of visitors.

The CVN is always looking for volunteers to help with its production. If you would like to help in any role do please get in touch with one of the people listed on page 3.

Stephen
